

AUTHORS' SHORT BIOGRAPHIES

---

COADĂ, Ludmila is Associate Professor at Free International University of Moldova and Researcher at the Institute of History and Political Science. She has conducted research as a Fulbright Scholar at George Washington University (2010-2011). Her areas of interest include Moldova's foreign policy, Moldova's relations with Russia and the EU, and Russia's politics towards the post-soviet states. She is the author of Zemstvo Institution in Bessarabia: Historical and Juridical Aspects (Chisinau, 2009) and has published various scholarly articles on Bessarabian history and Moldovan politics.

CIMPOEȘU, DORIN is a historian, former secretary of Romanian diplomatic mission in Moldova and Armenia, actually professor at the Department of Archives of the "Al. I. Cuza" Academy from Bucharest. He published several books and articles on political changes in the Republic of Moldova.

FEDUNYAK, Sergiy G. is Professor of International Relations at Chernivtsi National University. He has conducted his research at the Kennan Institute (2010-2011), where he studied the basic parameters and principal factors forming US-European joint security policy in the Newly Independent States of Europe and Eurasia region. He has published European Security Dimensions on the Post-Soviet Space: Formation of Integrated Security System of West and the Newly Independent States (Chernivtsi, 2005), as well as numerous articles on democratization, European integration and security, and Ukraine's foreign policy.

GROM, Oleg is a PhD candidate at the European University at Saint Petersburg. The topic of his thesis is The Bessarabian Question and Moldavian Nationalism in the early XX century. Author of several papers on nationalism in Bessarabia, co-author of the volume Bessarabia v sostave Rossiiskoi imperii, 1812-1917 (Moscow: Novoe literaturnoe obozrenie, 2012) with Andrei Cușco and Viktor Taki. Author and editor of a Russian language site on the history of Moldova and Romania (<http://dacoromania.net>). Research interests: modern Bessarabia and Romania, national movements in Eastern Europe and the Russian Empire, the borderlands of the Russian Empire, ethno-confessional policy in the region.

KOULINKA, Natalia is a founder and editor of the online publication "The Post-Soviet Post" at Stanford's Center for Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies. She holds a Ph.D. in Linguistics from Belarusian State University. She was a co-founder and the editor-in-chief of the first independent feminist newspaper "The Women's Newspaper" in Belarus. Her research interests include gender and mass media, the history and theory of the Soviet school of journalism, and political communication. She is the author of several articles on these topics.

MAKARYCHEV, Andrey S. is Alexander von Humboldt Foundation Research Fellow in the Institute for East European Studies, Free University of Berlin. He is the author of the book Russia and International Society: Conceptual Models and Policy Strategies (Lambert Publishers, 2011) and numerous articles in journals including International Spectator, Europe-Asia Studies, Journal of International Relations and Development, and Cooperation and Conflict. He has lectured in the Universities of Nizhny Novgorod and Syktyvkar (Russia), Malmo (Sweden), Azerbaijan Diplomatic Academy, and other institutions.

RUMYANCEV, Sergey is very well known as one of successful Azerbaijan sociologist who is going to defend his second dissertation in history under Institute for European Ethnology, Humboldt University in Berlin. During last decade Sergey Rumyanchev was involved in the research projects of changes in Azerbaijan post-independence period, studying nationalism, identity and diaspora transformation after collapse of URSS and published more than 40 studies (books, chapters and articles).

SATO, Keiji is a research fellow at the Slavic Research Centre of Hokkaido University. He is a PhD in social-cultural studies (Kyushu University), wrote his dissertation on analysis of ethnic mobilization at the end of Soviet period. He currently works as a visiting research fellow at the Davis Centre for Russian and Eurasian Studies of Harvard University (June 2011 – March 2012). His recent publications are “The Analysis of the ‘Matrioshka’ Structure of Ethnic Problems during the Decline of the Soviet Era: The Case Study of the Problem of Polish-Lithuanians (in Japanese), Slavic Studies 54 (2007); “Mobilization of Non-titular Ethnicities during the Last Years of the Soviet Union: Gagauzia, Transnistria, and the Lithuanian Poles,” Acta Slavica Iaponica, Volume 26 (2009); “The Molotov-Ribbentrop Commission and Claims of Post-Soviet Secessionist Territories to Sovereignty,” Demokratizatsiya, Volume 18, Number 2 (2010).

STAMATI, Iurie is a PhD candidate at Laval University, Canada. His PhD dissertation is about the place of Slavs in the Moldavian archaeological discourse during the Soviet era. His specific research interests are: the place of archaeology in the so-called “totalitarian” societies; archaeology and nationalism; the “field” of cultural production (especially the historiography and archaeology fields) in Soviet Union; the involvement of Pan-Slavic ideology in Moldavian and Romanian historiographic discourse.

SUSLOV, Mikhail is a visiting scholar at the Uppsala Centre for Russian and Eurasian Studies, Uppsala, Sweden and senior researcher at the Russian Institute for Cultural Research, Moscow. He received the PhD in History and Civilization (European University Institute, 2009) with the thesis „Russian Geopolitical Utopias in Comparative Perspective, 1880-1914” published in 2010 as a monograph and as a series of articles. His postdoctoral project examines Orthodox fundamentalism as an intellectual tradition in Eastern Europe.

WILSON, Andrew is a Senior Policy Fellow at the European Council on Foreign Relations and Reader in Ukrainian Studies at University College London. He has worked extensively on the comparative politics of the post-Soviet states since 1990. His latest book Belarus: The Last European Dictatorship was published by Yale University Press in October 2011. His other recent books include The Ukrainians: Unexpected Nation (Yale UP, third edition, 2009), Ukraine's Orange Revolution (Yale UP, 2005) and Virtual Politics: Faking Democracy in the Post-Soviet World (Yale UP, 2005). His publications at ECFR include Dealing with Yanukovych's Ukraine, The Limits of Enlargement-lite: EU and Russian Power in the Troubled Neighbourhood, Meeting Medvedev: The Politics of the Putin Succession and Can the EU Win the Peace in Georgia? (all available at www.ecfr.eu).